People's Credit Union Donates $5,000 to South County YMCA Child Care Program, Y's Impact Carries Forward

Peacedale, RI: YMCA of Greater Providence, CEO, Steven G. O'Donnell, visited the South County YMCA to accept a donation of $5,000 from the People's Credit Union via the United Way's corporate MyFund program. Presenting the donation was People's Credit Union Marketing Manager, Courtney Hunter, who previously served as a member of the South County Branch Council.

"People's Credit Union is so pleased to make this $5,000 donation to the South County YMCA. Our deep-rooted commitment to enhancing the communities we serve is one of our guiding core values," Hunter said. "At People's Credit Union, we believe in supporting initiatives, programs and organizations that share our philosophy of people helping people."

The donation will be dedicated to helping fund the child care center at the South County YMCA, an onsite, year-round program, that includes age-appropriate enrichment activities like swimming, gymnastics, sports, fitness, dance, music and outdoor play. The Y is committed to the physical well-being of the children and provides weekly activities based on age and developmental levels.

In making the donation, Hunter applauded the Y's work in helping children of all ages learn and cultivate values, skills and relationships that lead to positive behaviors, healthy lifestyles and academic achievement.

"The YMCA of Greater Providence is grateful for the generous donation from People's Credit Union to enhance the child care program at the South County Branch," said Steven G. O'Donnell, CEO of the YMCA of Greater Providence. "We share with the People's Credit Union a commitment to community and recognize that an investment in our children is an investment for our future!"
